Barron's MCAT Flash Cards

Synopsis

Students preparing to take the new Medical College Admission Test will value this set of flash cards as they brush up on questions typical of those that appear on the actual MCAT 2015. The cards— with questions or concepts on the front and answers or concept explanations on the reverse sides— are divided into seven content areas: Biology, General Chemistry, Organic Chemistry, Biochemistry Physics, Psychology, and Sociology. Cards measure 4 1/2" by 2 3/4", and have a hole in one corner to accommodate a metal key-ring-style card holder that is included with the cards. The ring allows students to arrange the flash cards for study sessions in any sequence that suits their needs. These flash cards make excellent study aids when used alone, but are even more effective when used in tandem with Barron's new MCAT test preparation manual.

Customer Reviews

These flashcards are helpful. Although they do have a lot written on them. I also wish the front of the flashcards had the word of concept while the back has the information. I had to write on labels the words/concepts that were described in the back in order to study.

Great review cards. These are geared to prepare the student for the new formatted MCAT. These have a range of topics and information but are better to use after you have already had certain classes and/or done some preparation. The questions and answers are thorough and complicated so it's important that you understand the concepts of what you are studying. They are not meant to teach you subjects but test your knowledge on the ultra important sections of this exam. A MUST HAVE for aspiring med students.

These flashcards are of fairly good quality. However, the content leaves something to be desired. Some of the definitions and equations have errors. For the social science (behavioral/psych) flashcards, they sometimes choose fairly imprecise words, leaving you scratching your head for how to parse similar terms. I get that this is supposed to function as a review aid, but better to go with Kaplan.

At a preliminary glance, these cards are very detailed and helpful. Can seem like a lot of information, but it's supposed to be a review, not your only course of studying. 10 cards a day is about the max in order to fully absorb and retail the information (i would honestly prob only do 5 cards a day). Highly suggest not looking into this until you're thoroughly reviewed the material as the bullet points contain a lot of information about each subject and can be very overwhelming (i made this mistake). Very compact in size and comes with one ring holder (wish it came with one for each subject). Cards are made of paper and a bit flimsy (they're as thin as regular index cards). Def can't just throw these in your purse or bag and expect them not to rip off the ring or crease. I suggest keeping them in a index card holder at all times if not in the box. Box is very sturdy. Includes tables of contents, cards are numbered, info about the authors, etc. Its like a study guide book in card form.

The information on these flash cards are quite informative, but also can be difficult to understand. The flash cards are for someone whose already gone over the materials for the mCAT. It often uses difficult words that you will indeed need to lookup. The cards themselves don't seem all that durable so they probably won't last. They're a good supplement to review kits, but not the only thing you should study

PROS: These cards are light-weight, legible, and very comprehensive. I appreciate the carry-clip that the cards come with, which makes it easy to take some cards to review without bringing the whole box. While you shouldn't rely on this as a primary MCAT study resource, it's definitely a good supplement
CONS: These cards can be very wordy, especially since many cards don't have images. The organic chemistry section also goes into excessive detail

Best MCAT note cards ever!!! Barron's notecard is hard paper and resistance to tear (unlike other flimsy paper note cards). Comes in a little convenient box for safe, easy opening. Also comes with a ring holder for holding note cards. In addition, the note cards are color labeled on top for easy identification on which section you are studying. Content wise the note cards does a pretty good job as a review, but should not be used for prime studying. Note cards mostly define terms, topics and vocabulary necessary to pass the MCAT. Prefect for passing time while riding on a bus or before sleeping at night.

It Should say on the box for the New MCAtand Also there are no diagrams on the cards. Just seems like description. The previous version had diagrams
