John M. Feierabend is a national leader in the field of early childhood education and currently serves as a professor and chair of the music education division at The Hartt School of the University of Hartford in Connecticut. He lives in Simsbury, Connecticut. --This text refers to an alternate Paperback edition.

This is another Feierabend winner. It's great for imaginative activities to get elementary music students to experiment with their singing voices...especially developing their head voices. Some examples of activities are vocal sirens and imitating whale sounds.

Great tool for music educators!

This is a good resource for teaching my youngest students. I'm still figuring out how to incorporate it best in my lessons.

I am using some of these for pre-K and need more ideas...they all help.

I learned so much from this book. It was very easy to read and apply to my general music classes.

Already using some of his activities with my kindergarten and 1st grade classes.

Amazing resource with TONS of fun ideas for young singers.

This is great! My students love all of the activities in the book, and it's truly a great way to get very young singers to explore their head voice.
