Book Antique Radios

Perfect Thank You.

This book has many Radios listed and photographed in color that make it a very desirable for identifying Vintage Radios. It is not complete as to all Radios made, as such a book would take Volumes especially if it included the History of the specific Radio and an outline of the Company that made so many Radios, especially in the United States during the Golden Age of Radio. Highly recommended.

This is one of several books I have on old radios, but the one I reach for first. Great seller! Great price!

I don't have much use for price lists. Pricing is far too varied to be representative of what you'd see in reality; but at least they do give you a heads up whether a given radio is generally valuable or generally dime-a-dozen. Though it never seems to keep the local antique co-op from pricing a 60s

GE clock radio as if it were a catalin Fada.This one is listed in "database" format, in other words, it's mainly a text listing of makes and models with a little bit of info. E.g. Zenith 5-G-500, portable, 1941, cloth covered, inner right black dial, left grille, fold-down front, handle, 2 Z knobs, BC, 5 tubes, AC/DC/battery....$25-30. So if you've got a Zenith 5-G-500 it'll tell you the year it was made and couple other pieces if info you may not know, but that's it. If you have a radio that's without identification markings (and we've all seen those), you ain't gonna find it in here. There are a some photos, but far, far fewer than listings.
